Liya Terms of Service

Draft for the planned online service — not yet in effect. 30 October 2026.

Using Liya

Liya is intended to provide a space for sharing content and interacting with other users. Features may be unavailable or change as the service develops. You are responsible for use of your account and for respecting applicable law and other people.

Content and conduct

Share only content you have the right to use. Do not post unlawful content, exploit or harass others, impersonate people, distribute spam, or attempt to interfere with the service. You remain responsible for content you submit. Where sharing features are available, you grant the service permission to host and display submitted content as needed to operate those features.

Safety and service changes

Where available, use the reporting and blocking tools to raise concerns or control interactions. Content or access may be restricted when necessary to protect users or the service. Availability is not guaranteed, and features may be changed or discontinued.

Contact

No support channel has been activated yet. The proposed address support@liya.com is not confirmed to be operational.